After graduation, Johnson briefly worked as a teacher before entering the political arena. His first significant step was running for the Texas House of Representatives in 1937, at age 29. The 1960 campaign showcased Johnson's political acumen. He managed the vice-presidential campaign, ensuring that his influence within the ticket was maximized. While the vice presidency was often seen as a stepping stone, Johnson viewed it as an opportunity to position himself for future leadership.
